

STRONGEST EVIDENCE OF FAITH.

Frank Kimball Guarantees that Hyemey Will Cure the Worst Case of Catarrh in Norway.

When one of the most reputable concerns in Norway guarantees that a medicine will effect a cure or he will refund the money, it speaks volumes as to the merits of that remedy. It is in this way that Frank Kimball is selling Hyemey, the treatment that has made so many remarkable cures of both acute and chronic cases of catarrh in Norway and vicinity.

Hyemey is not a pill nor is it a liquid that has to be taken with a tablespoon or spoon. Just breathe it by the aid of an inhaler that comes in every outfit and benefit will be seen from the first treatment.

It destroys all germ life in the air passages and lungs and enriches and purifies the blood with additional ozone. It comes out of the head and throat, of the stomach, liver and kidneys. Whenever mucous membrane contains catarrhal germs, there Hyemey will do the work of healing.

When using this treatment the air you breathe will be just like that on the mountains high above the sea level, where grow balsamic herbs and plants which make the air pure by giving off volatile antiseptic fragrance that is healing to the respiratory organs.

Remember that if Hyemey does not cure you, Frank Kimball will refund your money. This is a good time to state that by this natural method and treatment, catarrhal colds that are so common at this season.

His Neck Broken.

Lewis Greenleaf Hersey of Earlville, Iowa, was suddenly killed Friday, by falling from a carriage, which came in contact with a stone in the field where he was driving. His neck was broken.

Mr. Hersey was born in Sumner, Oct. 1, 1833, and was the youngest of seven children. He was the last surviving member of the family. His boyhood was spent on the farm, and he attended school at South Paris and the Earlville Little Institute at Auburn. He worked at South Paris and at Bangor in a store. At the age of 22, he was thought to have consumption and returned to his farm, but his health was restored and he went to work in South Arlington, Mass. In 1851 he went to California in search of gold, and after being there a few years returned and worked for his father till his father's death.

He married Mary Ann Crafts in 1854. They afterwards moved to Auburn, where he became interested in a shoe factory. In 1862 his wife died, leaving three children—Lewis Filson Hersey, deceased; Nellie, now Mrs. H. S. Bush of De Kalb, Ill., and James E. Hersey of San Angelo, Texas.

In 1868 he bought a farm in Earlville, and married Flora O. Bolster. Later he went into business with a nephew, the late James Hersey, in the village of Earlville, where they built a store and elevator and dealt in grain and general merchandise. He was also associated in live stock business, the firm being Hersey, Daggett & Co. He retired from business in 1898.

He is survived by his wife and four other children—S. Freeman Hersey of Cedar Falls, Iowa; Mrs. Gertrude Knowles of Englewood, Ill.; Grace Hersey of Earlville; and Mrs. Ruth Colton of Beloit, Wis.

In politics he was a Republican and had been elected to the State senate and representatives.

"Let the law be enforced" is the almost unanimous cry from the papers of the state. They did not all agree on what the law should be but they are right in unitedly demanding its enforcement. The past policy of many cities and towns has been like that of the father who said, "John, go to bed."

"I won't," was the reply. "Well, sit up then, I will be obeyed." We have had enough of this. Let the law be obeyed regardless of who it hits.

The ledge in which tin stone is usually found is generally of a porous nature and decays quite rapidly, leaving the tin stone to fall away and go down the stream. Pure ore contains as high as 78 per cent. of pure tin, and specimens vary from that percentage down to 60 per cent.

On account of the present high price of tin, the specimens are particularly interesting at this time. Tin has been found in several localities in this state in paying quantities.

In Winslow a shaft was sunk and work carried on for some time in 1880, but for some unexplained reason was suddenly stopped, and rumors of its being bought by other mines to curtail the production were freely heard at that time.

Very fine specimens have been found at Paris, in Oxford county. Tin ore has also been found in Hebron, Greenwood, Blue Hill and Mount Denison.

Some time before he received this specimen, Mr. Knight received an inquiry from a party in the northern part of the State asking price for analyzing a specimen which was to be sent to him.

The letter stated that there was a man in his town at whom all the people were laughing because of his idea about a certain kind of stone found on his land. At his request the letter was written. Like hundreds of other communications of this kind, Mr. Knight answered by sending a price list of the work and heard no more from it. Like the first case, the correspondence was destroyed and the name of the writer lost.

Whether this has any connection with the first case is not known, although it is thought possible it may have been from the same party.

In a recent number of the United States Mineral Resources, the government report of minerals and mining, a lengthy article is given on the occurrence of stream tin and advising prospectors to look into cases in several parts of the country.

The location of the Lost Tin Mine of northern Maine is at present an unsolved mystery. The owner has either given up hope of its being anything of value or is living in entire ignorance of the possibilities lying within his reach.

One of the Oldest Twins Dead.

Mrs. Mary Stuart of Hiram, one of the oldest pair of twins in the country, the other being Mrs. Carolyn Boothby of Leeds, died at her home in Hiram, Wednesday, May 21st.

These twins were born at Old Orchard near a part of Saco on July 20, 1813.

Mrs. Mary Stuart raised a family of 11 children, the youngest dying at the age of 23 years. Besides the sister twin in Leeds, she is survived by two sons, Solomon and Everett Stuart of Hiram, and the daughters, Mrs. Wentworth and Mrs. Cole of Hiram, and Mrs. Roberts of South Dakota. She is also survived by two grandchildren, Wallace and Jedediah, and one great grandson, Wallace V. Stuart, all of Portland.

The Birthplace of the Republican Party.

It is a little surprising to find a Maine paper speaking of the birthplace of the Republican party as being in Michigan, as the York Transcript is guilty of doing. Everybody should know that the Republican party was born among the hills of Franklin and Oxford counties, with the famous Strong convention, or its first attempt to stand alone.

It is said and by the very best authority that the Grand Trunk No. 6 express was started from Island Pond runs by Baker's Ledge above West Paris at the rate of 70 miles an hour.

A Lost Tin Mine.

Somewhere in the northern part of Maine there is undoubtedly a ledge containing tin ore that would be valuable to the owner if he knew what he had on his property. The peculiar part is that the place is not known to anyone, although it is certain that there is such a ledge in that section of the state. It is now up to a modern Sherlock Holmes to ferret out the mystery and enlighten the owner of the land, although it bids fair to remain an unsolved mystery. Specimens from the ledge have been examined and found to contain tin in paying quantities.

The story is a peculiar one and savors of a tale of olden times although it differs materially, inasmuch as it is true instead of being a legend handed down through several generations. Some time during the year 1897 there was received at the Maine Experiment station at Orono a sample of small pebbles from some person in Northern Maine. These pebbles were sent in by the writer of the letter for examination with the request that the officials should name them and state if they were of any heaviness they were thought by the owner to be something out of the ordinary line of pebbles. He said they were to be found in unlimited quantities in the bed of a stream running through that place. It is in this work although as an accommodation they often name stones for people making inquiries when they can do so without making any investigation into the matter and without trouble. In this case none of the assistants could name the stones and they were put aside for the correspondent notified that no value could be placed upon them and that they could not be identified without making an analysis of them.

The correspondence was destroyed so the name of the correspondent was lost. At that time Ora W. Knight of Bangor, state assayer, was connected with the station as assistant and thinking that sometime he would make an analysis of the pebbles, saved the specimens but unfortunately he did not preserve the owner's name. He simply marked them from northern Maine.

In January of this year, in looking over some of his numerous specimens he happened to see this lot in a bottle and remembered the circumstances connected with the case. He made an analysis and found them to be excellent specimens of cassiterite or tin stone. When found, as these were, in the bed of a stream, it is called stream tin.

Some of the pebbles were rounded, but many of them showed sharp angles, denoting that they probably had come from a great distance from the place where they were found. These being found in great quantities can easily be accounted for by the fact that tin stone is very heavy and for that reason would naturally collect in an eddy or slough of water, while the other lighter pebbles would be carried on further down the stream.

The ledge in which tin stone is usually found is generally of a porous nature and decays quite rapidly, leaving the tin stone to fall away and go down the stream. Pure ore contains as high as 78 per cent. of pure tin, and specimens vary from that percentage down to 60 per cent.

On account of the present high price of tin, the specimens are particularly interesting at this time. Tin has been found in several localities in this state in paying quantities.

Valuation of Wild Lands.

Shows Remarkable Increase Now Over That Placed by Commissioner in 1870.

The valuation of the wild lands of the state of Maine as made by the board of state assessors in 1902 shows a remarkable increase over that made by the valuation in 1870. Thirty years have wrought great changes in the market value of the timber lands of the state. The growth of the pulp industry is responsible in no small degree for the fact that the valuation of the wild lands in 1902 is about five times greater than it was in 1870.

At that time there were 8,666,487 acres in the state, subject to taxation and the valuation placed upon them was $5,156,356, an average of 59 cents an acre. In 1902, the number of acres had increased to 9,090,798, which was brought about by the sale of state lands to individuals, and the valuation thereon is $25,528,980. This is an average of about $2.80 an acre.

In the 1870 valuation, No. 13, range 5, in Aroostook county, 22,040 acres, was valued at $8,100. In 1902, the same territory was valued at $44,160. Thirty-two years ago the value of Hammond Plantation of 22,040 acres, was placed at $28,800; to-day this same property is valued at $88,100.

The valuation commission of 1870 placed $12,600 upon Rangeley Plantation in Franklin county, then comprising 28,670 acres. The state assessors in 1902 valued this same tract of land less than 700 acres, at $106,000. Dallas Plantation in the same county was valued at $5,000 in 1870; now its value is placed at $77,140. Davis Plantation is now valued at $110,000; in 1870 its valuation was stated to be $11,200.

The most valuable township in Hancock county is No. 41, Middle division, now valued at $77,140. In 1870 this township was thought by the valuation commissioners to be worth $13,000.

Strawberry Festival.

Not all the people who were fond of strawberries were present at the festival Thursday evening at concert hall, but there was a goodly gathering of those people, and they found the strawberries excellent in all the forms they were served, especially the shortcake, which was very toothsome and was consumed in large quantities.

After the tables were cleared away, an entertainment was presented by the Dean sisters of South Paris, the 10-year old pianist and violinist, who played excellently. Readings were given by Mrs. June Hutchins, Freda Schunier and Rev. Miss Angell, songs by Miss E. M. French and Mrs. B. E. Bradbury, a duet by Mrs. Kimball and Mrs. Bradbury. Each number was very pleasing to the audience, and in each case an encore was demanded.

Missionary Work in Oxford County.
Sunday Rev. B. S. Rideout supplied the pulpit of the Warren Congregational church at Cumberland Mills. Rev. W. B. Hague, formerly of South Bridgton, now traveling through this part of the state as representative of the Missionary society spoke at the Congregational churches here and at Norway Center, upon the work of the missionary society.

The great problems of the society are these: How to get the missionary churches to do what they can; how to get the means to do for the missionary churches to do what they cannot do, and how to get means and men for the work. Nine-tenths of the problems will be solved when the right men are found.

Of the net gain of 128 in the churches, including five new ones organized the past year, 106 have come into the missionary churches.

He told of work at Grafton, Upton, Errol, N. H., lower and upper Magalloway. In Upton six new members, last year, and seven this; two new church buildings in Magalloway to be finished this year. He also had a very thorough account of a sixty-mile trip through the lumber camps of Northern Oxford and Franklin counties. A collection was taken for the work.

Memorial Sunday.

A clear and bright day was Memorial Sunday and there was a goodly number who attended the Universalist church to listen to the annual sermon to the Grand Army. Representatives of Harry Rust Post and Woman's Relief Corps, numbering about fifty, marched from Grand Army hall to the church, where seats were reserved for them.

The church was decorated with a large number of cut flowers, which were very prettily arranged, and some of which were exceptionally fine.

The music was especially adapted to Memorial Day and was itself eloquent and inspiring. Rev. Caroline E. Angell preached from James 5, 5. "Behold how great a matter a little fire kindleth," a practical, interesting and inspiring sermon, dealing with the little things of life: the little vices, the little sins, the little choices of evil. The sermon was listened to with the closest attention.

The exercises, Saturday, May 23, will be: In the morning at 9:30, decoration of the graves at Pine Grove and Rustfield, and at 2:30, address by Rev. J. H. Little in the hall.

Letter to H. E. Mixer.

Dear Sir: Here's what "wears longer" means.

D. T. McGown, Cooperstown, N. Y., built a house in '85 and painted Devos. The paint lasted ten years.

A year or two later, a neighbor built a house and painted it lead and oil. The neighbor's house was repainted twice in the same time.

This looks as if the neighbor's house was painted three times in eight or nine years, and McGown's once in ten years. We are not quite sure—we tell the tale as it comes to us.

It is enough to say that Devos Lead Zinc lasts twice as long as lead and oil alone. The reason is: white lead is soft and chalks off; zinc is hard; and, when thoroughly ground into the lead, prevents its chalking and makes it more durable.

Yours truly,
F. W. Devos & Co.,
New York.

Hobbs Pond Suggested.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ADVERTISER: Some time since I noticed a communication in the ADVERTISER signed "Eight Dollars a Year," which set forth briefly the condition of affairs as they exist on the shores of the lake and the complaint which the writer makes regarding the manifest desire of the members of our Board of Health to close their eyes to such things. I have watched with some interest since for a reply but so far have been unable to find anything of the kind nor have I ascertained that the Board has made any move looking toward the abatement of the nuisance.

Now there can be but little doubt that the charges made in the article above referred to are true. Any one who doubts them has but to go to the lake shore and ascertain for himself. The only question is how can the evil be best remedied. There is no doubt in my judgment that the worst source of corruption who bathes in the lake and otherwise corrupts the water supply of these two villages are liable to both fine and imprisonment for so doing but who is to complain? The Board of Health, our natural and legal protectors, refuse absolutely to act and the Norway Water Company seems to be equally neglectful of the welfare of its patrons.

Further yet, there is a feature of the problem which the writer of the other letter seems to have overlooked altogether and that is the matter of the inflow from North pond. This, in my judgment, the worst source of corruption with which we have to deal. The waters of this pond are brackish and bad at all seasons. The pond itself is shallow being filled with mud and decaying vegetable matter into which one can run an oar its full length without striking bottom, while bubbles of gas rise on all sides. The natural flow of this is into Penesseewassee lake, which under natural conditions would receive it gradually. As things are at present, however, the water is held back during the wet season for power purposes as a reserve against the times of low water and then the whole flood is poured into the shrunken basin of Penesseewassee.

Now in the face of these facts, for facts they are, why does not the Water Company go to Little Penesseewassee (Hobbs pond) for its supply? It seems to me that here we have a solution for the Hobbs pond. You will find one or two small inconsequential brooks that make their way into the pond. A large brook forms the outlet. The inference is that the bottom is covered with living springs which flow constantly. Could you ask for a better supply?

Finally let me consider the results that would be obtained by this proposed extension of the main to Little Penesseewassee. First of all Norway and South Paris would obtain a water supply that cannot be excelled for purity—a benefit that every man, woman and child in the two villages would share. Secondly, we would be assured of a permanent supply for years to come. For the pond is the fountain head and receives no streams that might become contaminated. Then too, because of its size and distance from the village it offers few attractions to the camper and cottager. Thirdly, we have Penesseewassee left as a play ground, free to all who enjoy cottage life and water sports. It is hoped by many of our business men that Norway will some day attract the attention of some of the swarms of summer people that throng to Maine each year. Why not? The village is pleasantly situated and easy of access. There are abundant. The scenery here in the foothills of the White Mountains is excellent. Add to these the attractions offered by a lake like our own with no restraint on the boating, fishing and bathing and the list is complete. Penesseewassee offers all that the most ardent visitor could require but none will come as long as he realizes that he renders himself liable to a term at Paris each time he touches his foot to the water. Wouldn't it be well for our people to consider this matter seriously?

Norway, May 20, 1903.

B. W. Tuttle of Rumford was in Norway, Friday.

L. engraved on it which will ever be a silent reminder of the appreciation, love and respect which the members feel for her whose ennobling influences was the result of organizing the order here among us, and whose faithfulness and unselfishness all through the days of small beginning will ever be remembered by all Loyal sisters.

After the work of the order was closed refreshments were served and a pleasant social hour enjoyed by all by a special dispensation granted by the grand assembly of Maine.

Made a Mistake.

The Oxford County Teachers' convention which was scheduled for May 23-29, at Oxford, has been postponed indefinitely. The committee decided it was inadvisable to try to hold the meeting in view of the fact that many schools have already closed, and also, because Memorial day is so near.

It is slackness to write for publication and not write people's full names. It may be handy but it is a good deal like washing up the floor with a dishcloth. Don't do it.

Every mother possesses information of vital value to her young daughter. That daughter is a precious legacy, and the responsibility for her future is largely in the hands of the mother. The mysterious change that develops the thoughtless girl into the thoughtful woman should find the mother on the watch day and night. As she cares for the physical well-being of her daughter, so will the woman be, and her children also.

When a young girl's thoughts become sluggish, when she experiences headaches, dizziness, faintness, and exhibits an abnormal disposition to sleep, pains in the back and lower limbs, eyes dim, desire for solitude, and a dislike for the society of other girls, when she is a mystery to herself and friends, then the mother should go to her aid promptly. At such a time the greatest aid to nature is Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It prepares the young system for the coming change, and is the surest reliance in this hour of trial.

Case of a New York Girl of Interest to Every Mother and Daughter in the Land.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I hope you will publish this letter, for I want all mothers to know how much good your medicine did my young daughter. Her health broke down about six months ago, and although she is large for her age, I did not understand what was wrong with her; the doctor did not, either, for he treated her for her heart, which pained her a good deal; but he did not do her any good, and we were afraid heart trouble would carry her off. Every day she kept getting whiter and thinner. She had no appetite, and she sat around without any ambition, and was always too tired to do anything. All night long she would moan in her sleep, as though in terrible pain.

"I felt terribly discouraged; I was spending money for doctor's bills right along, but she was receiving no help. At that time I was taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and I read in one of your books about young girls. I decided to drop the doctor, and give her your medicine. I wish you could see the change in her, and the pink cheeks Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has given her. She had taken but half a bottle when menstruation started again and her heart trouble went away like magic. I had her continue the medicine, and now she is fat, rosy, and perfectly healthy. Menstruation is regular and painless, and I owe my thanks to you and to your wonderful medicine for her good health."—MRS. MARGARET PHELAN, 673 Tenth Avenue, New York City.

SPECIAL ADVICE TO YOUNG WOMEN FREE.

From her vast experience in treating female ills, extending over 20 years, Mrs. Pinkham has gained a knowledge which is of untold value to every ailing young woman. Her advice never fails to help. If you need such help write her. Address Lynn, Mass.

A medicine that has restored so many women to health and can produce proof of the fact must be regarded with respect. This is the record of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, which cannot be equalled by any other medicine the world has ever produced.

It is well to remember these facts when some druggist tries to get you to buy something which he says is "just as good." That is impossible, as no other medicine has such a record of cures as Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound; so do not experiment with untried medicines, but insist upon the one you know is best.

$5000 FORFEIT if we cannot forthwith produce the original letter and signature of above testimonial, which will prove its absolute genuineness.
Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass.

How to Write a Good Letter.

There is no denying that the average woman does not know how to write a good letter—that is, it is not as a rule interesting reading. It often does not give the recipient much real information about the writer. It is frequently unbusiness-like in details.

There is no excuse for omitting to write the full address at the top of a letter, however well it may be known to the recipient. It is always possible that a letter may be returned through the postoffice, or it may be replying to by mail, in case of illness; and, moreover, if you do not make a habit of writing your address, you are likely to forget it in a strange place when in a hurry.

Then, again, no letter should be sent away undated—dates may always be of importance to the recipient.

If you write a business letter, take care that it is business-like—which is almost the same thing as saying, "Take care that it is short." If you write on business matters, even to a friend, confine your letters entirely to business, and do not mix in with them anything but a friendly epistle, as it will have to be kept for reference, and may pass through several hands.

A letter to a friend ought to be such as to give her pleasure—in that case, you must take the trouble to consider her tastes and interests. It is generally well to begin by comments on the last letter received, as you thus show interest in your correspondent's concerns.

As a rule, it is possible to make the story of one's doings interesting, if one takes enough trouble; many people make the mistake of merely mentioning the things they have been or are doing, without giving any details. Such a letter suggests a skeleton diary and is of less interest than one visit or hobby described in sufficient detail to call up a vivid picture to the mind. Then in order to give pleasure you must consider what the correspondent is anxious to hear, not merely that which you are anxious to tell. Above all avoid writing unkindly things of third people.

Among minor details, avoid the absurdity of filling up a letter with exaggerated apologies for not having written before, or for not writing a longer reply. Then do not besprinkle the epistle with exclamation marks, inverted commas, dashes, or much underlining. The effect produced always suggests a hysterical correspondent.

Then lastly, never try to excuse yourself for omissions by concluding with the phrase, "I am in a hurry to catch the post," as this is impolite to your friend, because you should not have left the letter until the last moment.—Woman's Life.

Journalists Should Begin and End in the Country.

How to get a position on the staff of the "Times" or the "Sun," the "Times" or some other good paper? Certainly, there is no rule at all about that. For my own part, says Dr. Albert Shaw, in the June Cosmopolitan, I am a great believer in country training. I think newspaper work in a smaller town or city affords the best opportunity for the beginner to learn all parts of his trade. He will get on much faster afterward in the city for having learned all that a country newspaper office can teach him. On the other hand, I am also a great believer in the country as a place for the able and self-respecting city newspaper man who has grown weary of the burdens and exactions of work in a metropolitan newspaper office, and who years for a little more chance to develop his own personality. I have known various cases where such men, still young, took what they had saved out of their salaries, bought newspapers in smaller cities or country towns, soon became leading men in their communities, learned to keep early hours, and "lived happy ever after."

Arrested for Murder.

Arthur S. Lane Arrested by State Detective Bassett for the Murder of Olive H.
Broad at Cornish, a Former Resident of Brownfield.

Arthur S. Lane, twenty-two years of age, was Friday morning, May 22, arrested by State Detective P. Bassett of Norway and Deputy Sheriff of York county, James C. Ayer of Cornish, charged with the murder of Olive H.
Broad in Cornish on August 20, 1902.
Lane was arrested at 6 o'clock at the farm of William Harmon, near Richville station in the town of Standish.
Bassett and Ayer drove from Cornish in a team. Mr. and Mrs. Lane were in bed, but Mrs. Lane heard the noise of the approaching team and dashed out of her room, meeting Detective Bassett on his way to their apartment. Mr. Bassett, however, continued into the room where Lane was still abed, and he was half awake and did not entirely take in the situation. When he saw Mr. Bassett he evidently realized that something was wrong for he asked drowsily:
"You're an officer, are you, and you're after me for shooting that woman, I suppose?"

"Yes," replied Bassett.
The latter then told Lane to get up, which he immediately did. The accused man appeared very nervous and fidgety.
He was taken to the home of Ayer and in the afternoon at 2:30 o'clock was arraigned before Trial Justice William B. Randall and at the request of George H. Emery, the county attorney, Lane was continued till Friday, May 29, at 10 o'clock. Lane pleaded not guilty of the charge. He asked to have Edwin L.
Poor of Standish serve as his attorney.
He was taken to Saco jail.

Lane was born in Buxton. His business is that of farm hand. His father is William Lane, and the time of the murder young Lane lived on Smut street.
Later he moved to the Harmon farm about four miles from Cornish, where he was arrested. He married the daughter of George Sanborn. The family at the time of the murder consisted of Lane and his wife, his mother and two sisters. At the present time Lane is living at Harmon's as before stated, and the mother and two sisters are still in Cornish. Last fall when the officers were investigating the murder, Lane told the entire family that if any of them said anything about the murder to the officers he would kill them, and on account of this threat they did not dare open their mouths. It is known that he had a revolver at the time of the murder that he afterwards sold.

Last fall Arthur Lane shot his brother Charles in the head and he was taken to Naples, but for some reason the case was not pressed against him and he was discharged. Lane has served a sentence of eighteen months in the Cumberland county jail at Portland for cruelly killing a horse, a cow and a calf. He cut the horse's throat in a fit of rage and made way with the other animals in different ways.

Bassett came to Cornish at the request of the relatives of Olive H. Broad, who did not feel quite satisfied with the previous investigation, and wished the matter looked into further. He arrived in town Wednesday, and there learned that the two Sanborn sisters had a very interesting story to tell. These girls are 18 and 10 years of age.

Mr. Bassett therefore immediately called on the girls, who made the following statement:
On the morning of the murder, August 20, Lane and a brother went to the Cornish fair. Both rode over on bicycles. Lane returned home at midnight.
The next morning Lane burned his soft felt hat which he wore on that day, and later tried to give his trousers to his brother-in-law. Mr. Sanborn refused to take them, saying they had blood stains on them, and immediately accused him of having murdered Olive H. Broad. A few days after this Mr. Sanborn died a natural death. The same day Arthur Lane buried the trousers in a barrel of sand piled up about the cellar of the house and intended to protect it from the winter's cold and snow. Lane have burned his hat, which was his best one, and now without a good one, his wife's mother gave him $1.00 and told him to go over to Buxton and get a new one. This he did.

Bassett went to the house and found the trousers where the girls had said they were buried. They were badly decomposed, but had stains on them, which will be examined by experts to ascertain if they are blood. It is claimed by those who have seen them that the stains were certainly made by blood.

Lane is a slight man, very dark, with a long face and has always been thought bright and intelligent.
Olive H. Broad was murdered on the second day of the Cornish fair, Aug. 20, 1902. She was a middle aged woman and had a little property that was looked after by her nephew, James W. Hill of Brownfield. She arrived on the 4.08
p. m. train at Cornish and started to walk from the station to the village, less than a mile. She was supposed to have had about $5 in money. The body was found the next morning about 120 rods from the highway. There was a cut over the right eye and a bullet hole behind the right ear. The pocketbook was missing.

At last fall the affair was practically given up until some new clue might put it in its appearance, but it was not until last week that any new developments occurred, resulting in the arrest of Lane.

The defence will attempt to prove that Lane did not burn his hat, that the blood stains on the trousers were caused in Cornish the day of the murder. Lane claims the blood stains were caused by a fight he had with his father-in-law, during which he struck Mr. Sanborn.
This was either the day of the murder or the day after. Then with his wife, Lane, fearing arrest, fled to the assault, so he claims, disappeared and went to Brownfield.

In attempting to prove an alibi and denying the allegations it is thought the defence will make a strong fight to secure an acquittal for the prisoner at the preliminary hearing and considerable evidence will then be introduced.

Laws Affecting Inland Fishing.

Those of Interest in this Vicinity.
Landlocked salmon, trout and togue may be taken in the ordinary way with hook and line from all waters in Maine, except those closed by special designation. No landlocked salmon under nine inches in length or trout under five may be caught. Penalty, $5 and for each fish taken 50 cents.

Guides must be employed by all non-residents, entering upon the wild lands of this State with intent to camp and kindle fires thereon, while hunting or fishing, between May 1st and November 30th, inclusive, unless while so doing, the non-resident is stopping permanently at a sportsmen's resort registered under the law licensing such hunting or fishing camps. Penalty, $40 and costs, and subject to 30 days' imprisonment.

Open time on land locked salmon, trout and togue from going out of the ice in the spring, until the first of October. Sebago lake is one of the exceptions. The season there opens April 1st.

No Black Bass under 12 inches in length shall be caught or taken from Keoka lake and Kezar pond. No black bass shall be caught for sale in Kezar pond or tributaries and each person's catch is limited to 20 pounds in one day.

White Perch are protected during spawning season from April 1st to July 1st and may not be generally taken in any way during that time for other fish by accident while trolling for other fish may be retained if desired, without violating the law.

It is unlawful to use in inland fishing any fish spawn, grapple, spear, trawl, weir, seine, trap or set lines, dynamite or other explosive or stupefying substances, or any other device than by "ordinary mode of angling with single baited hooks and lines, artificial flies, artificial minnows, spoon hooks and spinners."

Transportation.—No person or corporation shall transport at any one time for one person, more than 25 pounds of landlocked salmon, trout, togue and white perch, any or all, and the fish must be accompanied by owner, plainly marked by owner's name. But by purchase of a special tag, obtainable at express offices, (tag for salmon, trout or togue, 75c; and for white perch, 50c), owner may ship one fish or ten pounds to his home wherever it may be, or to a hospital within state.

Closed waters in Oxford county:
Rapid river from swing bridge at Oxford Club house to Umbagog lake, Pleasant pond (until March 6, 1904, thereafter for five years only on Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays in open season, when but 25 fish may be taken by one person in one day). Great and Cold brooks in Stoneham; tributaries of Anasagunticook, Pennesseewassee and Little Pennesseewassee lakes, and of Little Bear, Howard's, Garland, Roxbury, Songo, Sand, Pickering, Bryant, Pleasant, Indian (in town of Greenwood), South and Twitchell ponds; Indian pond above named is closed until April 1st, 1906.
Ellis river and tributaries in towns of Andover, Roxbury, etc., open only Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays, May 1 to August 15.

Ward's brook, Ward's and Walker's ponds open from May 1st to August 1st, Sunday, Long, Wells, Otter, Rump, Billings, Barker's, M. T. Abbey, Upper and Lower Black, Cuspeque and Lincoln ponds and Farmachenee lake and Magal-loway river and tributaries above Azis-cobs falls, open to fly fishing only.

Many anglers do not know or realize that the ordinary citizen who has gone to great labor and expense in developing his property has certain rights that they are bound to respect. Of course, they are not sportsmen who will thus disregard the rights of others, but alas! all who fish in Maine are not to be called truly sportsmen. The law regulating the matter of crossing some other man's property to reach the fishing waters is as follows, and is worth reading:

"Whoever wilfully enters on or passes over the garden, moving land, or other enclosed or cultivated land of another, between the first days of April and December, after being forbidden so to do by the owner of said land, or his agent, either personally or by notice posted conspicuously on the premises, is guilty of trespass, and shall be punished by fine not exceeding twenty dollars. The owner of such place, or any person employed in its cultivation, or rightfully in the possession thereof, may arrest any person found violating the preceding section, and carry him before any magistrate within the county where the arrest is made."

Penalties.—Except where specially mentioned, the penalties for violation of any of the laws affecting inland fishing, are not less than ten or more than thirty dollars for each offence, and an additional dollar for each fish so illegally caught, taken or killed.

Miscellaneous Information.—Tributaries are understood to mean all inflowing brooks, streams or rivers, but the term does not include any ponds from which the tributary stream flows. There is a penalty of $50 for taking up, injuring, or destroying any screens erected at the outlets of ponds or lakes by State authority. Suckers may be taken, with spear or hook and line, in any closed tributaries from the going out of the ice to June 1.

RUMFORD FALLS.

Death of Laforest F. Smith.

Laforest F. Smith died Wednesday afternoon, at his home on Pine street. He had been sick for a long time, and about two weeks before underwent a surgical operation, which at first benefited him.
He was born in Mercer, June 6, 1856.
Later his parents went to Mechanic Falls and he was educated in the common schools of that town. He learned the printer's trade there and worked in Augusta and Gorham, N. H.

In April, 1892, he came to Rumford Falls and worked in the Times office until a year or so ago, when he went into the printing department at the Continental paper bag mill.

He married Ella M. Folsom of Augusta, who with two sons, Harold and Frank, survive him.

He was a charter member of Penna-cook Lodge, I. O. O. F., and had represented this Lodge in the Grand Lodge several times. He was a member of the Rebekah Lodge and of the A. O. U. M.

Funeral services were held Friday, at the Methodist church, Rev. G. A. Martin officiating.

Friday morning, the body of Louis As-gent was discovered in the river by A. E. Wyman. It had been in the water about eight days. The coroner's verdict was suicide.
